

Contents

The procedure of business cycle turning points identification based on hidden Markov models	5
Michał Bernardelli
The Viterbi path of hidden Markov models in an analysis of business tendency surveys	25
Michał Bernardelli, Monika Dędyś
Survey-based household inflation expectations – Are they valid? A multi-group confirmatory factor analysis approach	49
Piotr Białowolski
Latent factor growth models for forecasting Polish GDP growth, inflation and unemployment using survey data	69
Piotr Białowolski
Stochastic demands, fixed costs and time-varying Solow residual	95
Maciej Dudek
Application of selected ideas from statistical overlapping samples theory to tendency surveys: Designed panel vs resulting overlapping samples	127
Barbara Kowalczyk	